Content

Students will learn skills to address mindsets and improve communication to lead cooperation, strategic planning, and priority-setting. With each workshop, participants receive an interactive session with a professional trainer, entertaining anecdotes based on the dynamics of the group, and materials to reinforce the concepts learned.

Materials

All physical materials provided for your students and staff are included in the fee. You will also receive access to an online resource page with downloadable content such as job aids, student leader certificates, and marketing material.

Booklet

All attending students and staff receive a work book that reinforces concepts and provides tools to be referenced throughout the year.

Stickers

Badge and concept stickers are provided to every student leader. These act as visual reminders of learning objectives.

Posters

Each attending department receives three large posters of learning models discussed in the workshop to hang in their classrooms.

Student Insights

A Group Dynamic Leadership Workshop gives you the tools to be a leader who builds relationships, encourages others, and asks for more! Students, check out this video for more about what to expect:

"What I learned nearly 15 years ago in Alan's leadership workshops are still relevant today, making me a better leader, teammate, and person in my adult life. People sometimes ask me where I learned to lead teams of people so effectively, and they're always surprised to hear me say, "from a few leadership workshops in high school."

About Your Trainer

With a Master's degree in education and a history of building solid programs in secondary education since 1991, Alan Feirer established Group Dynamic as a leadership training business that started in schools and soon branched into businesses and organizations, going full-time in 2010. Alan has served thousands of youths to build the next generation of leaders.
